

exchanging students to study and communicate in the other institution. The number of exchanging students as well as their majors and training costs would be agreed by both parties.

4. The two sides shall carry out planned cooperative exchanges in various fields such as teaching and scientific research. Related academic seminars would be jointly held by both parties.

5. This agreement will remain valid for three years. Either party who wants to terminate the agreement before it expires is supposed to notify the other in writing. The cooperative relations could be officially terminated a month after both sides receive the notice of termination.

6. This Agreement is in duplicate, and each side holds one. Once both sides have signed the contract, the agreement would be taken in to effect. When the agreement has expired, the validity can be prolonged on mutual consent by both parties.
